

Morning Light

The sun climbs slow above the trees,
Gold spills across the quiet room.
Coffee steams, a soft breeze,
Another day begins to bloom.

Typewriter clicks, the words appear,
Ideas dance on paper white.
No hurry now, no distant fear—
Just morning, simple, pure, and light.

— For Vidar, February 2026